NOTES

Korea: Yesterday's attack on a US patrol inside South Korea probably resulted from Pyongyang's concerted effort to build up tension along the boundary dividing North and South Korea. Incidents since last October have included the killing of six members of a US patrol on 2 November, and the sinking of a South Korean patrol boat by coast artillery fire on 19 January. One US soldier was killed in the attack yesterday; there were no known North Korean casualties.

Aden: A showdown between British authorities and South Arabian nationalists may be rapidly developing. The nationalists' general strike, begun last Saturday, has brought on a new wave of terrorism and violence and tough British countermeasures. Casualties among demonstrators and police have been heavy, and a curfew has been imposed in the Arab sections of Aden.
